OUR COLLECTIVE REFUSAL TO DEAL WITH REALITY

10 September 2012 Monday

The conspiracy against humanity is perpetuated by optimists. The conspiracy is our collective refusal to deal with reality. The majority live their lives in a happy fiction. The majority of the population are optimists, albeit even though they are living a lie via the minimization of consciousness. In other words, the ways in which they make themselves happy are, ultimately, false.

While waiting for the arrival of Thomas Ligotti's The Conspiracy Against The Human Race, I will be scanning ~~reading~~ what I can about nihilism. I found an interview with Ligotti himself where he ~~refers~~ refers to TCATHR as his "Una-bomber style essay." "This is by no means a philosophical work, let alone a magnum opus. It's a synthesis of ideas I've formed over my life and other people's ideas that rhyme with mine," says Ligotti.

Wiki says Ligotti's worldview has been described as PROFOUNDLY NIHILISTIC (though Ligotti himself is wary of the label, stating: "Nihilist is a

'Nihilist' is a

~~label~~ name that other people call you. No intelligent person has ever described or thought of himself as a nihilist.", and has stated he has suffered from chronic anxiety for much of his life; these have been prominent themes in his work.

So, what is nihilism?

Nihilism is the belief that all values are baseless and that nothing can be known or communicated. It is often associated with extreme pessimism and a radical skepticism that condemns existence. While few philosophers would claim to be nihilists, nihilism is most often associated with Friedrich Nietzsche.

Let us break it down, shall we?

Nihilism comes from the Latin nihil, or nothing, which means "not anything", that which does not exist, i.e., "NO THING". Friedrich Jacobi used the word to negatively characterize TRANSCENDENTAL IDEALISM.

Arthur Schopenhauer described transcendental idealism as a "distinction between the phenomenon and the thing-in-itself, and a recognition that only the phenomenon is accessible to us because we do not know either ourselves or things as they are in themselves, but merely as they appear."

Schopenhauer's comments on the word, "transcendental":
 "Transcendental is the philosophy that makes us aware of the fact that the first and essential laws of this world that are presented to us are rooted in our brain and are therefore known a priori. It is called transcendental because it goes beyond the whole given phantasmagoria to the origin thereof."

a priori → "from the earlier"

a posteriori → "from the later"

- a priori knowledge is independent of experience
- a posteriori knowledge is dependent on experience or empirical evidence

Schopenhauer contrasted Kant's TRANSCENDENTAL CRITICAL PHILOSOPHY with Leibniz's DOGMATIC PHILOSOPHY.

From Schopenhauer's magnum opus, The World As Will & Representation, Volume I, Appendix:
"Criticism of the Kantian Philosophy"

<<< With Kant the critical philosophy appeared as the opponent of the entire method [of dogmatic philosophy]. It makes its problem just those eternal truths (principle of contradiction, principle of sufficient reason) that serve as the foundation of every dogmatic structure, investigates their origin, and then finds this to be in man's head. Here they spring from the forms properly belonging to it, & which it carries in itself for the purpose of perceiving and apprehending the objective world. Thus & here in the brain is the quarry furnishing the material for that proud dogmatic structure. Now, because the critical philosophy, in order to reach this result, had to go beyond the eternal truths, on which all the previous dogmatism was based, so as to make these truths themselves the subject of investigation, it became transcendental philosophy. From this it follows also that the objective world as we know it does not belong to the true being of things-in-themselves, but is its mere phenomenon, conditioned by those very forms that lie a priori in the human intellect (i.e., the brain). Hence the world cannot contain anything but phenomenon. >>>

The most commonly used and understood sense of the word nihilism today is EXISTENTIAL NIHILISM -

the notion that life has no intrinsic meaning or value.

Max Stirner's (1806-1856) attacks on systematic philosophy, his denial of absolutes, and his rejection of abstract concepts of any kind often places him among the first philosophical nihilists.

For Stirner, achieving individual freedom is the only law; and the state, which necessarily imperils freedom, must be destroyed. Stirner argues that existence is an endless "war of each against all."

Nietzsche: "What I relate is the history of the next two centuries. I describe what is coming, what can no longer come differently: the advent of nihilism... For some time now our whole European culture has been moving as toward a catastrophe, with a tortured tension that is growing from decade to decade: restlessly, violently, headlong, headlong, like a river that wants to reach an end. "

Note: I remember a book I gave to my cousin Eric Bent, The Dark Side: Thoughts On the Futility of Life (1994) by Alan Pratt. In antiquity, Hegesis argued that, because ~~misery~~ & vastly outnumber pleasures, happiness is impossible, and subsequently advocated suicide.

As this is the continuation of a life-long philosophical autobiography, my investigations will be interspersed with snapshots of my own living drama unfolding.
As masses gather around television sets to be enculturated with propaganda which memorializes
the destruction of the World Trade Center in Downtown Manhattan, I watch two cats chasing a female squirrel up a tree. I am reminded of how I was attacked at the tent city compound in Lakewood. A voice tells me, "Don't take it personal."

The second cup of instant coffee, while it stimulates my head, gnaws at my gastrointestinal system. I recall the insulting, annoying, hateful expressions on the face of the "girl friend" of the knuckle-dragger who assaulted me in my tent. I face the reality that the genius will be attacked by a confederacy of dunces whenever the genius has the audacity to unleash the full force of his intellect. I understand that I was assaulted not due to the color of my eyes, the lack of pigment in my skin, or my shared bald head. My body was attacked because of the impression my presence made in the heads of those who are insulted by my very presence.

Like "The Thing" or "Invasion of the Body Snatchers," they sensed my uniqueness, and they were offended by the superiority of my intellect. This was not motivated by racial tensions; it was motivated by the herd's collective inferiority complex. This phenomenon is expressed in Mark Twain's story of Tailor Billings.

"When a great genius appears in the world you may know him by this sign; that the dunces are all in confederacy against him." ~ Jonathan Swift

I imagine novels can be a way for authors to sneak in subversive ideas without actually coming right out and saying it. I prefer direct literature. Directly to the everyday reality of anxiety, insecurity, and existential despair.

I take a deep breath. Whereas for many moons I would require cannabis sativa, i.e., marijuana, to find "my mojo" for the past 9 days, especially the last few days, I have been able to summon this MOOD OF ENCHANTMENT & WONDER simply through CONTEMPLATION, REFLECTION, THINKING/FEELING, READING, STUDYING, FOCUSING MY ATTENTION.

One does not have to submit to simple slogans, optimism, and mediocrity just because one ceases to "party." One does not have to submit to the god of Abraham just because one takes a break from alcoholic oblivion. Technically, one could be a sober Satanist or even a sober suicide. I, like Schopenhauer & Ligetti, write for the SENSITIVE FEW, not the masses.

My literature is not about "entertainment".

I am not publishing a dissertation so as to be awarded an honorary Ph D in Philosophy.

My very own "diaries" are my magazine apers and masterpiece of creative expression. This is my revenge against those who conspire to make me think I am insane. Daily, I flip the script.

I have been rising from slumber at around the same time my mother does - 7AM or so. But this morning I rose (arose?) when I normally do - before sunrise. Two hours with coffee, tobacco smoking, and WRITING.

I don't care who witnesses my mind on fire. What am I supposed to do, watch the fucking television? Good morning fuckin' America?

I piss on TV-LAND from a very considerable height. By 7AM I am ready to cook myself some eggs. Is there any corn beef hash in the kitchen? Nope.

No matter. Two slices of white toast, two fried eggs over easy, a glass of water, 6000 I.U. Vitamin D, 600mg Calcium, chewable Calcium, chewable multivitamin, chewable C, and a glucose boost - also chewable. I do believe my animal body is trying to HEAL.

from "The Myth of Mental Illness" p. 3

While saving some posts manually to this flashdrive I just picked up (for $9.00 → 16 GB), I came across a short statement made by JQ (0000000)

"I've said it before, but it bears repeating. That massive stack of journals may be the most important philosophical work done in the last 50 years. Please hold onto it, recover what is lost (if possible), and make arrangements for the journals in the event of misfortune. I will gladly volunteer to take custody of them should something happen. But then again, there's some reason to believe something might happen to me before that can happen, so if I'm gone, then make sure someone who will appreciate them gets them. For them to end up in some dumpster would be a substantial loss to the human race, I believe."

Manually saving posts by brute force to this little flash drive may be very time-consuming, but I am going to peck away at it as long as I am here at Mom's. It is one of my PROJECTS — to PRESERVE ISIS.

The Savage Gods: Making the Darkens Conscious
 All ~~Life~~ Natural Life is Being Systematically Destroyed

Σ

The Great Mysterios... The renewable quality of the universe. For some reason, I remain open to THAT. I don't know what it is about such Mystery. Writers have always been trying for human beings, and as one ages, life really handles the human creature. And yet, I think original cultures had certain rites of passage to guide the Being (that spirit that moves through all things) through the process. The original people of North America believed humankind to be the weakest and least among the creatures of the earth since we depend upon all other life forms.

They even called them the Plant Nations and Animal Nations, and the shaman and medicine woman were kind of like a bridge between the human and non-human worlds. The human beings who lived tribally here as hunter-gatherers, as you know, felt the other life-forms of the earth to be their relatives. Man belongs to the earth. The earth does not belong to man.

And yet, as John Trudell reminds us, the people of Scandinavia and what is now called Northern Europe were also tribal Natural World Peoples (hunter/gatherers) before they were Christianized at the end of a bloody sword and effectively despiritualized/colonized. What happened to the natives of this "Turtle Island" 600 years ago happened to the Northern Peoples of so-called Europe thousands of years ago.

Not too many millennia in the past, all people were hunter-gatherers living in tribes, not nation-states. I can't believe some sinister, evil force purposely enslaved humanity. We know what happened as far as agriculture goes, the creation of a priestly class and armies of soldier-slaves, military conquest, and the rest. This process has been going on for thousands of years. In fact, so-called "white" people have been victimized and enslaved and oppressed by their own so-called people for the longest time.

All the prophecies of the original Natural World Peoples of this land (North America) are happening now.

John Fire Lame Deer: "Let us become like stones, plants, ^{and} trees. Let us be animals, think and feel like animals. Listen to the air. You can hear it, feel it, smell it, taste it. Wovya Wakan - the holy air - which renews all by its breath. No-ni-ya, wovya wakan - spirit, life, breath, renewal - it means all that.

Woniya - we sit together, don't touch, but something is there, we feel it between us, as a presence. A good way to start thinking about nature, talk about it. Rather talk to it, talk to the rivers, to the lakes, to the winds as to our relations. "

Maybe we become the winds when our animal bodies dissolve and disintegrate. Maybe we really are here to learn. What do any of us really know for sure? That's why I respect the concept of Wakan Tanka, or The Great Mystery. The cosmos is in our brains, but our physical brains are in the cosmos. When I condemn religion, I guess technically I mean "revealed religion."

THE SMOHALLA RELIGION and the DREAMER CULTS:

Snowhala said "Each must learn for himself the highest wisdom. It cannot be taught in a few words. One must also learn by singing and dancing with the Dreamer at night. There will be a resurrection of the ancestors who will descend to JOIN THE GHOST DANCE."

CRAZY GHOST SPEAKS

{ The Ghost Dance was a resurrection of the dead, a bringing back of the customs and way of life that the "Indians" [NATIVES of Turtle Island] were trying to hold onto.

The prophet who began the movement of the Ghost Dance was Wovoka, a member of the Paiute Tribe. He was descended of a family of prophets and Shamans. Known as a medicine man, it was said that during an eclipse of the sun and while suffering from a high fever, he had a vision which inspired the development of the movement known as the Ghost Dance. The vision that inspired the followers of the movement was that the white man would disappear from the Earth after a natural disaster catastrophe and that the Indian dead would return bringing with them the old way of life that would then last forever.

To bring these and other beliefs into effect, the "Indians" had to practice the customs of the Ghost Dance movement and to RENOUNCE ALCOHOL and farming and end mourning, since the resurrection would be coming soon.

The most important practice to ensure the effectiveness of the movement was the DANCE itself.

The dance was unlike other "Indian" dances with fast steps and loud drumming. The Ghost Dance consisted of slow shuffling movements following the course of the sun. It would be performed for 4 or 5 days and was accompanied by singing and chanting, but no drumming or other musical instruments.

In addition, both men and women participated in the dance, unlike others in which men were the main dancers, singers, and musicians.

The first dance was held by Wovoka around 1869.

Word spread quickly and the Ghost Dance was accepted by the Utes, Bannocks, and Shoshone tribes.

While adapting the movement, many tribes adopted specific customs and rituals to the Dance that reflected their tribes individuality. The Sioux added two specific elements including the use of hypnosis to bring about trances and aid in the COMMUNICATION WITH THE DEAD, and a ghost shirt. Made of buckskin or cloth, the shirt was said to make the wearer immune to bullets, a weapon of death known initially only to the white man.

A famous Sioux warrior, Sitting Bull, adopted the Ghost Dance into his way of life. He was a respected leader, medicine man and warrior. His following of this movement alarmed the military and Indian agencies. In 1890, just a few months after presiding at his first Ghost Dance, Sitting Bull was killed.

His followers fled and joined the band of Kicking Bear, one of the first to practice with Wovoka. Donning their ghost shirts and with their belief firm in their hearts, the followers of the Ghost Dance were rounded up at Wounded Knee creek and killed while resisting arrest. Among those killed were women and children wearing their ghost shirts, which did not stop the bullets of the Indian Agencies or the Military.

And so, with all this in mind, people ^{MAY} wonder ^{why} I should choose to identify with this movement. Well, the dead ^{have} taken my soul and carry us on their backs. BRING ABOUT TRANCES TO AID IN THE COMMUNICATION WITH THE DEAD.

The "White Man" and "white civilization" has not been kind, not even to those with paleasies! In fact, the disenfranchized pink skins have been victims of their so-called "rulers" from the beginning and ought to be natural allies of those who would destroy their "Rulers' Kingdom/empire!"

Nothing that is so, is so, I've been possessed by the Grandfathers of the Universe for a long time now. BEHOLD ME!

To this day, the English clergy hates David Hume for expressing himself in such clear honest language so as to expose the face of "the Church Fathers," those same types who whipped the children of Natives into submission at the "schools" where they were taken from their tribes and held prisoner.

"Instead of thinking and learning to understand nature, they [THOSE WHO WANT TO CONTROL THE MASSES] at once break out into a childish cry of "Design! Design!" [read: MANIFEST DESTINY]. They then strike up their old women's philosophy, and stop their ears against all rational arguments such as the great Hume advanced against them."

It seems that the greatest among those of this culture we have inherited have been misunderstood and ignored. 3

I'm going to take a break and end it for tonight. Sometime tomorrow I will continue transcription of this thread, starting with ~~AMERICAN UNDE~~ ANUS.

18 September 2012 Tuesday

Intelligent people in our culture must conceal their intelligence, as if it is noticed, it may be acted against by those driven by envy and resentment. They must hide their knowledge and try to filter out the constant stupidity around them.

The smartest people among us must hide our reactions, not voice our opinions, and serve in jobs and social capacities designed for people much dumber than ~~us~~^{us}. We are the ultimate minority, a hunted few who survive only by disguising ourselves ~~themselves~~ as normal dysfunctional denizens.

And so we forge ahead like Ghost Ships knowing that we will be ripped to pieces by the hordes of angry frustrated goats. Hume breaks it down:

Brainwaves: Book 3: p 141

("whatever pains these researches may cost us, we may think ourselves sufficiently rewarded, not only in point of profit but of pleasure, if, by that it means, we can make an addition to our stock of knowledge in subjects of such unspeakable importance.")

→ also see Brainwaves: Book 3 pages 141 & 142 (Hume)

"The Savage Gods: Making the Darkness Conscious," the forums at isis.phpbb3now.com, have some incredible dialogue taking place, especially between dimarcel and 0000000. We witness here an openness and of such magnitude - a very rare and precious phenomenon. I am looking forward to engaging in the dialogue there.

Also, "Lost in Oblivion" wants to see capitalism "blown well and truly out of the fucking water, once and for all." He explains how the white fascists use the media to manipulate the gorts into fascistic modes of behavior. Every disabled person in the "United Kingdom" in receipt of benefit ~~in the~~ now has to undergo a WCA (work capability assessment). Thousands are being determined "fit for work." Even those left on the dole are facing a lifetime on "Workfare Programs"! If one refuses, one will have what pittance one receives in benefits slashed even further - the government calls it "sanctioning" but, as Lost in Oblivion puts it, it's nothing more than sadistic punishment to the most vulnerable members of society. (mach frei? arbeit mach frei?)

This is pure fascism. It's amazing the formula

the zoo-keepers are using globally, pinning the upper middle-class against the poor, and then pinning the working poor against those who have the courage to refuse to participate. I don't know how we are going to fight this.

We are The People. The asshole politicians and Hollywood actors think this is all a big joke. Clint Eastwood tells his Bad Boys' Club, "We own this country," and Obama sounds like a military brat who has replaced the Kool Aid. He's actually a great follower of the religion Nat talks about. It's all enough to make the thinking minority go insane.

I'm afraid that this is our only option: INSANITY. I am dead serious. Let those of us that think go insane. For our sanity. It is ironic that the hard-core punk rockers end up being the most intelligent lot in this swamp of misery we call modern man. How many morons with high IQs don't stop to question our toxic way of life? How many so-called religious leaders and even political activists don't take it to the level that Nat just did in the video rant, or the way most of those who post here do on a regular basis?

It would seem that the only people who are keeping it real and thinking outside the box are I either institutionalized or always THIS CLOSE to being institutionalized.

It sickens me to admit it, but I had deeper, more intelligent conversations with so-called emotionally disturbed people in institutions than I have at University. Sad and frightening to think about, but true.

SHREW - PROPHECY OF DOOM

"Like erasing pencil from paper and rewriting in pen, our forced unwanted conditioning must be replaced by our true thoughts to develop a personal WILL and thus gain true mental freedom."

Until recently hard-core and punk (music) were at the forefront of this vital progression, but like most truths that become organized by 'the money changers', these truths become something quite different, usually serving the needs of those who pervert it."

"True mental freedom, like true religion, in reality, has to be approached from the most personal level. The calculated mind-rape that we have all been subjected to is on a scale and depth that is near impossible to comprehend but not impossible if you truly seek total mental freedom and the potential it offers.

"So, to rid ourselves of the immense problem of forced, unwanted conditioning, we need a method more potent than the problem. There is only one method, in my view, which can raise our mental state, and this is insanity. Forget all preconceived opinions on this subject! They are all lies! One must develop a strong intention for mental progression. All methods to achieve this must be carried out in solitude. We can raise all mental restrictions, and progress if we acknowledge the Confusion Master within us all."

Ø
For the second consecutive day I took a long walk to and from the store. My right calf is gaining strength. I may look over my website then I return to the Ligotti manifesto.

I will transcribe one more post, then I'm getting back into the Ligotti manifests.

Σ

Is it just me, or does it seem like the presidential elections are scripted, where Hollywood writes everyone's lines so as to control the outcome? This is all theater, right, so that the gots sigh in relief for Big Brother when he defeats the obviously evil opponent? How else does one explain blatantly ignorant remarks by the opponent? It's as if those who write these scripts are forcing us to re-elect the status quo Brand.

Mother Jones reported that at a Mitt Romney fundraiser the GOP nominee said that 97% of U.S. voters "believe they are victims" entitled to government support and that "my job is not to worry about those people."

"I'll never convince them they should take personal responsibility ^{and} care for their lives, ~~and~~ that ~~"my job is not to worry about those people"~~ Mr Romney said on tape. Actually, the government should be protecting us from the multinational industrialists and businessmen like ROMNEY. The thing is, it's all too

"good versus evil," as if it were all theater - then we're supposed to be surprised and relieved that Big Brother wins. We love Big Brother. He's protecting us from evil rich industrialists.

Of course Romney is an arrogant stupid prick! This doesn't make Obama our savior. Who writes these scripts? They should work in Hollywood. Oh, that's right. THEY DO work in Hollywood. Ξ

There is a hilarious passage from Ligotti's manifesto that I want to transcribe here and even type up in DARK SATIRE.

It's in the chapter, "The Cult of Gunning Martys."

Ligotti starts the chapter off noting that "every spread slave knows enough to be as perky as he is submissive in the presence of his master." Then he mentions a very sharp observation made by the great Arthur Schopenhauer: "Optimism seems to me to be not merely an absurd, but also a really wicked, way of thinking, a bitter mockery of the most unspeakable sufferings of mankind.

Ligotti goes on to say we are expected by society not to complain. He is absolutely correct. Society galls us whiners when we complain, even when our complaints are valid.

"Should you conclude that life is objectionable or that nothing matters - do not waste our time with your nonsense. We are on our way to the future, and the philosophically disheartening or the emotionally impaired are not going to hinder our progress. If you cannot say something positive, or at least equivocal, keep it to yourself. Pessimists and depressives need not apply for a position in the enterprise of life. You have two choices: Start thinking the way God and your society want you to think or be forsaken by all."

"No melancholic head-case is going to backmouth our catastrophe. The universe was created by the Creator, damn it."

"None of this is going to be overhauled by a thought criminal, I who contends that the world is not doubleplusgood and never will be."

"To lay it on the line, whatever thoughts may enter your chemically ~~imbalanced~~ imbalanced brain are invalid, inauthentic, or whatever dismissive term we care to hang on you, who are only "one of those people".

fully It took Thomas Ligotti's book to make me aware that, having studied Schopenhauer in 1991 must have had a great impression on me. This gave me confidence in my worldview. Now Ligotti is really giving me confidence that my attitudes and worldview are far superior to the masses.

19 September 2012 Wednesday

I awaken at 5AM, drink 4 cups of coffee, type up some notes on TSG:MDC, eat fried eggs, take vitamins, feel the pain in my right calf is much worse than yesterday, then LAY BACK DOWN TO SLEEP, awake before 8AM.

And then there is the way Brauer Bachon puts it (using higher mathematics):

Coercion consists in not being held to be someone who belongs to society, but as someone who is included within society.

"It is not for nothing that governments, when an emblem of their void wanders about - generally, an inconsistent or rioting crowd - prohibit 'gatherings of more than three people,' which is to say they explicitly declare the non-tolerance of the one of such 'parts,' thus proclaiming that the function of the state is to number & inclusions such that consistent belongings be preserved.

"The void is reduced to the non-representation of the proletariat, thus, unrepresentability is reduced to a modality of nonrepresentation; the ~~separate~~ separate count of parts is reduced to the nonuniversality of bourgeois interests, to the presentative split between normality and singularity. Politics can be defined as an assault against the state. The State is precisely non-political."

To think is to learn to see in a new way.
Another aspect of this conspiracy that I can be new depressing: The herd, with stupid shit-eating grins on their faces will say, "You think too much but you have no common sense."

What is common sense but behaving as a well-trained chicken who has been trained to peck
the right button to get the feed to fall?
What is common sense but the sense to conform, blend in, not draw attention to oneself?

Common sense? What, the longest nail gets hit with the hammer?

Is it not a radical worldview to consider the universe as malignantly meaningless, uncaring, and ultimately without purpose? How I felt I was perceived while I was a tenant at the shabby shithole at 7-B Marcy Street makes me want to check out this horror novel from 1964 by Rod Topor — THE TENANT.

The non-hero is Trekovsky. "At what precise moment," Trekovsky asked himself, "does an individual cease to be the person he — and everyone else — believes him to be?"

Trekovsky is an outsider who moves in a world where outsiders get persecuted, as they are in the real world. Hoping to move into a new apartment, he is made to feel as if he is nobody by the landlord, and then by the other residents of the sinister place. The other residents are well-adapted to the hell they have created for themselves.

Anyone who is marked as being outside of the group is fair game for those who would assert their reality over all others.

"The bastards!" Trekovsky raged. "The bastards! What the hell do they want — for everyone to roll over and play dead! And even that probably wouldn't be enough!" He is more right than he knows. As Thomas Ligotti tells me, what they want is for everyone to roll over and play them.

How many laborers of Downtown Freehold secretly despised me for having rental assistance to have a residence and social security disability for food, beer, and tobacco? Even as I lived humbly, I was hated by some uglies for my "underground fame."

People arrogate to themselves the authority to make a ruling on who YOU are, and you will stand mute before their bench.

When I encounter some shallow, superficial, vain, egotistical anti-intellectual, pizza man calling me a loser and threatening to call the police if I do not get away from the "restaurant" entrance - or when I am not permitted into The Court Jester to drink, I become OUTRAGED. How have I been conspired against in that town of Freehold? By petty state officials, small-business owners, and all the "insiders" - even as they could not match wits with me, have conspired and continue to conspire to treat me as this "loser" simply because I refuse to defer to their illusory status, because I am AUTHENTIC.

So many phony gorts I hate. Perhaps I might feel more free and be more authentic if, rather than attempting to reach out to the masses, I curse all who have abused me. I think I am prepared to "flip the script" and say
 NO MORE MR. NICE GUY, to TAKE MY REVENGE.

An odd way to begin a tome of ideas nearly 1,000 pages long. Before diving into the introduction: Blinded by the Light - Hitler, the Holocaust, and "the Past That Will Not Pass Away," I turn to the last section, PART SIX: Beyond Hitler: Continuity of the German Revolution Under Adverse Conditions, the final paragraphs of this tome.

"All Germans are not 'unbilically linked' to Hitler. The German part consists of much more than the events of The Third Reich, and, as this book has tried to show, still has a lot to teach us.

"The German predicament is not easy and the arguments in this book will not please everyone. It is to those who find it difficult to move beyond Hitler that The German Genius is dedicated." ~ Peter Watson

I put Ligeti's manifesto away as I finished reading it this morning. I intend to read it a second time after I return this tome, the German Genius, to the library. I may keep it until Halloween (6 weeks) or even until November 21st (9 weeks). This tome will give me even more obscure KNOWLEDGE, and I gladly soar above the masses.

I am a Germanic scholar, perhaps and most likely more of a scholar than the orthodox rabbis who I witness in Lakewood, New Jersey. Is it my Fate to be the PRESENCE of the Germanic Genius? I don't need people to like me. I don't need Las Vegas or the sisters to take my demon seed into their wombs.

«« The word "genius" in Germany has a special overtone, even a tinge of the demonic, a mysterious power and energy; a genius - whether artist or scientist - is considered to have a special vulnerability, a precariousness, a life of constant risk and often close to troubled turmoil. »» FRITZ STERN

While it will take me much longer to get through this text if I take notes from it, I will dedicate the next volume of my Philosophical Autobiography to this reading project. Will it still be BRAINSTORMS?
No. I will call the next series, "THE FAUSTUS PHENOMENON".

I am so refreshed that I am tempted to make a ritual of going back to sleep a few hours after I ~~initially~~ rise, preferably on the floor or ground if the weather permits. Who shall stop me? Who shall force me to adapt myself to the IDIOTIC norms of modern industrialized mass society? My destiny is to NOT BE A SUCKER, NOT BE A SLAVE, to dismantle the system from within.

By Halloween 2012, by the time I am preparing to take lodgings in another apartment, I want to start typing up the notes I will have by then gathered from Peter Watson's tome.

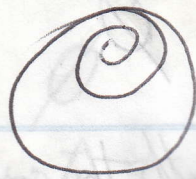

More and more I am feeling less cursed and more blessed over the obvious fact of being an outcast in a world populated by idiots and gorts. I acknowledge a great hypocrisy and contradiction in our modern society, especially in such areas as Lakewood, New Jersey, where an entire orthodox Hasidic community flourishes, and it is this: While orthodox religious rabbis and students alike honor themselves as "scholars," an independent philosopher such as myself is made to feel, he is, "sitting on his ass all day, jerking off." My activity is slandered as subversive and delusional, while religious scholars are paid undeserved respect.

Sunday

Smoking tobacco is witchcraft.
Sun-god worship, Baal worship.
George Carlin worshipped Baal because George could actually see Baal!

Mes, I burn "strange incense" to YHWH in my own temple, the ANIMAL BODY.

Smoking cigarettes is "offering strange fire to demons".

"YHWH says that anyone offers up 'strange fire' will die."  LOL  eyes rolling liars or just idiots?

I offer up the strange fire and I don't care what YHWH says about it. How do you like dem apples?

Awaken, heating potatoes - one fried egg each for Mum and I. We eat bread, drink coffee.
It's a "Sunday". She watches minister. I lay down.
